Projects

Aysu Nur Terzi Website, My website where i save my own cv. [!\[\]\(529949c2c3dadbaa4e538e8c643454bc_img.jpg\)](#)

This website consists of information that I have placed on my own domain address. This is my first project in which I helped myself develop on frontend. I used Html, Css, Bootstrap on my site that I wrote from scratch.

Unitopia, Website of our dream university with front and backend. [!\[\]\(99f58673407353e96a019fbca558fd72_img.jpg\)](#)

We did the frontend and backend coding of the website of our dream university. Since this was a group effort, we worked simultaneously with my teammates. I was responsible for the blog page and contact pages.

Skills

C ++

In addition to the simple coding studies given at the university, I coded a simple calculator using c++ language and I coded shapes with stars. I also spent a lot of time using this language to write various algorithms. My related works and projects are available on my github link.

Css

Working with css can be called a hobby for me. I have done a lot of design work in this field. I also improved myself in this area using Bootstrap. Css has a big role in all my work now. I mainly do website design. My related works and projects are available on my github link.

C#

I have multiple projects that I have developed with the c# language. The reason why I learned .net both basically added a lot to me and I developed in the field of software. I also completed the challenges given over .net in my last company.

SQL

We have completed our school project assignment by running various queries in our student database project that we created using PostgreSQL and MySQL. We created several tables. We also added and removed a lot of data. In this way, we have simply created a student automation database.

Html

I have enough knowledge to code the interface of an intermediate level website. I am improving in this field by making this site for myself. There is also a basic login page that I created using html and css. My related works and projects are available on my github link.

PHOTOSHOP

I am an active member of the promotion and design committee of our school's IEEE student club. I also took part in the activities of this club. Together with my teammates, we have done various projects such as social media posters, logo design, design of giveaways, especially club sweatshirts. In this way, I was able to improve myself in Photoshop.
